Eleanor Ngerchelei Titiml
2021 Applied Research Fellow

APPLY NOW!

To the Graduate Applied Research Fellowship Program!

Dates: Spring & Summer 2022 (May - August)

The Applied Research Fellowship program empowers Asian American, Native Hawaiian, and Pacific Islander (AANHPI) graduate students to conduct applied research that uplifts prominent issues affecting AANHPI students in higher education and utilize a policy-minded approach to devise recommendations for systemic change.

The Fellowship experience involves:

- Examining data around key issues impacting AANHPI communities
- Working collaboratively with coaches to build professional competencies
- Developing powerful communication tools that educate, elevate, and empower change for our community

Support:

- $5,000 stipend
- Applied research & policy development workshops
- Coaches in data analytics, policy, and communications

Networking:

- Connecting with national AANHPI community and advocacy network
- Co-authorship on published report and collateral

Professional Competencies:

- Research & Data Analytics
- Policy Oriented Thinking
- Communication, Media, and Design

Eligibility:

- Self identifies as Asian American, Native Hawaiian, or Pacific Islander (AANHPI)

- Enrolled Graduate student, all majors welcome to apply

- Demonstrated technical skills in research methods, data collection, data entry, database management, demonstrated experience in SPSS or other statistical software (e.g. R, STATA, SAS), and strong data analysis and writing skills

- Knowledge or experience with issues related to the AANHPI community and strong interest in policy

[Apply by March 13, 2022]

Please visit bit.ly/APIA_ARFP to learn more about the program and apply!

To learn more about APIA Scholars, please visit apiascholars.org